General Advance Story

"Auntie Mame," the comedy hit of the generation, comes to the Theatre screen on .....with Rosalind Russell starring in the title role and repeating the fabulous success she scored in 508 performances on the Broadway stage.

"AUNTIE MAME" MAT 1A

Rosalind Russell stars in Warner Bros. comedy hit, "Auntie Mame," Technirama-Technicolor production due.....at the Theatre. Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark co-star in the film version of the hit play and best-selling novel.

ROSALIND RUSSELL

Energy, health and vitality are the most important assets of a successful actress.

That is the opinion of Rosalind Russell, who arrives.....at the Theatre in the title role of Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," Technirama-Technicolor film adaptation of the famous novel by Patrick Dennis and the hit Broadway play.

Watching Miss Russell bound through a 12-hour day at Warner Bros. during the filming of "Auntie Mame" left no doubt in anyone's mind that she is abundantly endowed with energy, health and vitality.

The star, who went through 508 performances of "Auntie Mame" on the New York stage without missing an appearance, has a few bits of advice on physical fitness.

"I am a firm believer in regular exercise. It doesn't necessarily have to be violent exercise. Just walking regularly is a wonderful conditioner.

"Good posture is the basis for good health and I still try to follow this idea.

"We should try to avoid getting into a rut. Like Auntie Mame, we should not be afraid to change—a change of interests, a change of dress or a new hairdo. A dynamic person can obtain renewed energy by a change of interests."

Morton DaCosta directed "Auntie Mame" from a screenplay by Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

BELIEVABLE PERFORMANCE

When Peggy Cass takes dictation in shorthand as Rosalind Russell's secretary in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," she's really taking it. Miss Cass' mother insisted she study shorthand and typing in Boston before she headed for Broadway in search of a career as an actress.

The ex-secretary won the 1957 Antoinette Perry Award as the best supporting actress on the Broadway stage for her portrayal of the secretary, Agnes Gooch, in "Auntie Mame." She repeats the role in the Warner Bros. picture, due.....at the Theatre.

"Auntie Mame," a Technirama-Technicolor production, was directed by Morton DaCosta.

Co-starring with Miss Russell in the Warner Bros. picturization of the famed best-selling novel and hit play are Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark. Technirama-Technicolor production was directed by Morton DaCosta, director of the original New York stage play which starred Miss Russell.

As a novel, "Auntie Mame" remained on the best-seller lists 112 weeks. As a play, it was not only a smash New York and London hit, but a highly successful road show as well.

Now, it promises to set even more spectacular records as a motion picture, and Miss Russell is certain to be a leading contender for the year's top acting awards.

Betty Comden and Adolph Green wrote the fun-filled screenplay from the novel by Patrick Dennis and the stage adaptation by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee.

Ace Director of Photography Harry Stradling, Sr., handled the Technirama-Technicolor cameras and Bronislaw Kaper wrote the ingratiating musical score.

COCKTAIL CAPER

In Warner Bros. "Auntie Mame," now at the Theatre, Rosalind Russell whips up a cocktail of secret ingredients, which she calls "The Flaming Mame." Trick is to drink it fast before all the alcohol burns away.

Morton DaCosta directed the Technirama-Technicolor picture, adapted from the hit Broadway play and the best-selling novel.

"AUNTIE MAME" MAT 2B

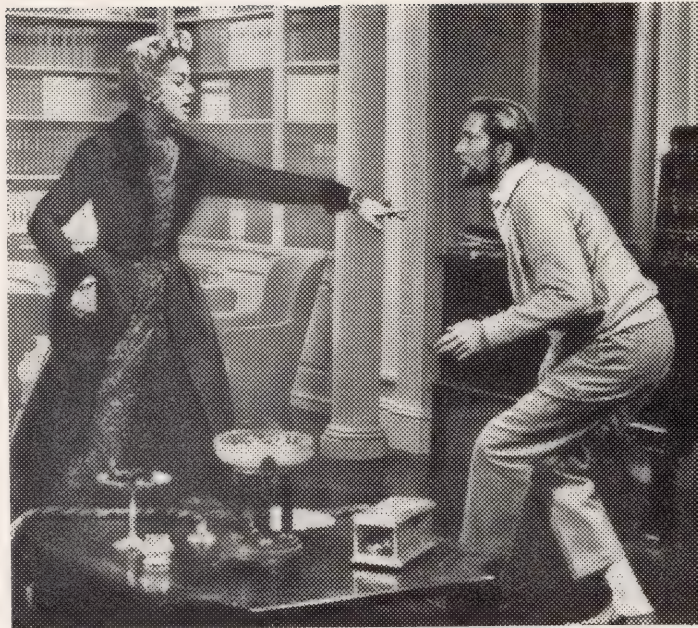

Roger Smith, Terry Kelman and Pippa Scott in a comedy sequence from Warner Bros. "Auntie Mame," starring Rosalind Russell and due.....at the Theatre. Morton DaCosta directed the Technirama-Technicolor film version of the hit New York play and the best-selling novel.

NO ESCAPE

Patric Knowles, who turned to acting to escape his job as assistant to his publisher father in Oxford, England, has returned to publishing again.

Knowles plays the New York book publisher and suitor of Rosalind Russell in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," the Technirama-Technicolor comedy hit, opening.....at the Theatre.

Morton DaCosta directed the film from a screenplay by Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

"AUNTIE MAME" MAT 2A

Rosalind Russell and Robin Hughes in an hilarious comedy sequence from Warner Bros. "Auntie Mame," coming.....to the Theatre. Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark co-star with Miss Russell in the Technirama-Technicolor production, based on the hit Broadway play and the best-selling novel.

LIMITED EDITIONS

Five thousand book covers were specially printed for the lavish Beekman Place apartment in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," starring Rosalind Russell, which comes.....to the Theatre.

The books had deluxe dark brown covers to match the decor of the apartment during the literary phase of Auntie Mame's life.

"Auntie Mame," a Technirama-Technicolor production, was directed by Morton DaCosta from a screenplay by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, based on the best-selling novel by Patrick Dennis and the Broadway hit play, adapted for the stage by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee.

LAVISH DECOR

One of the most fantastic and expensive living room sets ever designed for a motion picture is the one in Danish Modern decor for Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," starring Rosalind Russell, which comes.....to the Theatre.

The startling effect of the furnishings commences with the view of a huge light fixture suspended from the ceiling in the hall. Swimming in the fixture are gold fish.

The living room features elevator furniture, hydraulically operated, which can be raised or lowered by a master switch. In one corner of the room is a 24-foot sculptured pylon, its base encircled by a pond containing more gold fish. In another corner is a huge kachelofen. The wall in back of this porcelain stove is done in tile imported from Italy.

The living room floor is of white ash with decorative walnut stripes. The furniture, cast in aluminum, was specially designed and built in the Warner Bros. property department.

This Danish Modern set is the fifth of six different decors for Auntie Mame's fabulous apartment, designed by Art Director Malcolm Bert.

"Auntie Mame," a Technirama-Technicolor production, was directed by Morton DaCosta.

"MAMES" NEEDED

If we could fill this world with Auntie Mames, we would enjoy greater happiness and a fuller life.

This opinion is expressed by Rosalind Russell, who should be an authority on Auntie Mame. For 508 performances she portrayed the fabulous lady in the Broadway production, "Auntie Mame," and again plays the title role in Warner Bros. Technirama-Technicolor film adaptation of the comedy, due.....at the Theatre.

Explaining the popularity of Mame, who first became known to millions of persons via the pages of Patrick Dennis' novel, Miss Russell declares:

"She is without fear, an extrovert, a doer. She does not complain or explain. She is malleable but not soft. She loves people but detests snobs and bigots. Her unquenchable optimism makes her an example of the power of positive thinking.

"Suddenly you realize how true and deep is the meaning of Mame's own line: 'Life is a banquet and most people are starving to death.'"

This is Auntie Mame's philosophy in a nutshell. Simple, accurate and practical.

Morton DaCosta directed "Auntie Mame" from a screenplay by Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

MORTON DaCOSTA

Along Broadway Morton DaCosta is known as a gentleman with a magic touch in directing plays. This reputation will surely be carried over in motion pictures after his triumph as director of Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," starring Rosalind Russell, the Technirama-Technicolor film version, due.....at the Theatre.

During the past three seasons he has directed three plays—"No Time for Sergeants," "Auntie Mame" and "The Music Man." All three have been smash hits.

The film version follows the play closely. "I staged the New York production of 'Auntie Mame' with the fluidity of a motion picture," DaCosta explains.

DaCosta, born and reared in Philadelphia, began his professional career, like many other fine directors, as an actor. Later, he became assistant to Maurice Evans and was launched as a New York director of several comedy productions.

Five years ago he had one of the most unusual assignments in the theatre. Without knowing a word of Italian he directed "Dream Girl" in Rome. Working without a translator, DaCosta helped make the play one of the Italian capital's brightest hits.

Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame" co-stars Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark.

FORREST TUCKER

Forrest Tucker is proof of the theory that a wide variety of jobs and experiences are better training for an actor than any drama school.

Tucker, who co-stars with Rosalind Russell in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," currently at the Theatre, never saw the inside of a drama school before making his film debut. He did, however, take an intensive course on life and people.

On one hand, Tucker attended fashionable prep schools and mixed with the socially elite as a youngster. On the other, he searched for adventure and would hop a freight train when the fancy took him.

At the age of 12 he rode the rails from Boston to Los Angeles and stayed on the West Coast for two months doing odd jobs.

At 14 he drove a coal truck in Iowa, was a candy salesman at a theatre in Washington, D. C., and a master of ceremonies in a night club upstairs after the show.

After his two years in the Cavalry, Tucker enrolled at George Washington University where he remained just five months before deciding it was an actor's life for him.

Ninety-one pictures later, Forrest Tucker is still proving a wide variety of experiences pays off. The authentic southern accent he displays as Beauregard Burnside in "Auntie Mame" is something he picked up while serving with the Cavalry in Virginia.

UNUSUAL MUSEUM

Rosalind Russell, who arrives.....at the Theatre in Warner Bros.' hit comedy, "Auntie Mame," has an "Auntie Mame Museum" in a room of her Beverly Hills home.

In it are all types of Auntie Mame articles—lamps, ash trays, bracelets, cigarette holders—sent her by ardent fans.

EARLY TRAINING

It's not surprising that Forrest Tucker handles horses with ease for the fox hunting sequence with Rosalind Russell in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," opening.....at the Theatre.

At the age of 16, Tucker ran away from home to join the Cavalry and spent two years in this branch of the service.

FASHION PAGE

Clothes may make the man, but dresses help make the successful motion picture. This is the contention of two-time Academy Award winner Orry-Kelly, who created the 30 stunning outfits for Rosalind Russell in Warner Bros.' "Auntie Mame," coming.....to the.....Theatre.

"AUNTIE MAME" MAT 1B

Rosalind Russell re-creates the role she made famous on the Broadway stage, in Warner Bros.' film version of the hit play and best-selling novel, "Auntie Mame," coming.....to the.....Theatre. Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark co-star in the Technirama-Technicolor picture directed by Morton DaCosta.

The Russell wardrobe ranges from beaded hostess pajamas and an extravagant gold sari to a simple, black riding habit. Whether Auntie Mame is riding a camel in the desert or visiting her nephew at prep school, Orry-Kelly saw to it that she is well dressed and that the dresses help establish the mood of the character and the scene.

"In designing Miss Russell's gowns I used the flowing Vionnet line, which flatteringly follows the contours of a lady's figure. A dress should be like smoke which envelops a woman's body without quite touching it," Orry-Kelly explains.

"Particular care was paid to color in designing the dresses. Frequently there is too much color in motion pictures. It is important that sets and clothes complement your star. I feel that the wardrobe of Auntie Mame helps establish the mood of the picture and point up the comedy."

"Auntie Mame" was filmed in Technirama and Technicolor, and Morton DaCosta directed for Warner Bros.

CHANGE OF PACE

British actress Coral Browne, famous for her Shakespearean roles with the Old Vic Company, makes her film bow with Rosalind Russell in Warner Bros. comedy hit, "Auntie Mame," coming.....to the.....Theatre.

Also starring in the Technirama-Technicolor production directed by Morton DaCosta are Forrest Tucker and Fred Clark.

FOLLOWS TRADITION

Morton DaCosta, in his film directorial bow, follows the Alfred Hitchcock tradition of appearing in his motion pictures. He plays the role of Auntie Mame's brother, Edwin Dennis, in Warner Bros. "Auntie Mame," the Rosalind Russell starrer, due.....at the.....Theatre.

Only DaCosta's hand is seen, however, holding a legal document on a desk.

ROGER SMITH

Playing the guitar can make you a movie star, and Roger Smith has proven it. This handsome young man appears as the nephew of "Auntie Mame" in the Warner Bros. Technirama-Technicolor production starring Rosalind Russell, due.....at the.....Theatre.

Smith was a Navy pilot instructor in Honolulu when his guitar headed him in the direction of Hollywood. One evening James Cagney, then filming on "Mister Roberts" for Warner Bros. in Honolulu happened to hear Smith play the guitar at a party. He was impressed with the boy's stage presence and encouraged Smith to come to Hollywood after his discharge from the Navy.

Up to this time, Smith had always regarded acting as too precarious a business. Now, however, he has no reason to regret his decision.

Roger Smith is under contract to Warner Bros. and in addition to the featured role in "Auntie Mame," he stars with Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. and Edward Byrnes in Warner Bros. "77 Sunset Strip" television series.

"Auntie Mame" was directed by Morton DaCosta and also stars Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark.

"AUNTIE MAME" MAT 2C

Rosalind Russell, Jan Handzlik and Fred Clark in one of the few serious scenes in Warner Bros. comedy sensation, "Auntie Mame." Forrest Tucker and Coral Browne also co-star with Miss Russell in the Technirama-Technicolor film version of the long-run Broadway play and the best-selling novel.

AWARD-WINNING SECRETARY

Peggy Cass, whose first job was as a secretary, is discovering that secretarial experience pays off.

She won the Antoinette Perry Award for the best supporting actress on the Broadway stage as the secretary, Agnes Gooch, in "Auntie Mame." Now she appears in the same portrayal in Warner Bros. film adaptation of the comedy hit, starring Rosalind Russell, coming.....to the.....Theatre.

The embryonic actress was hired as a secretary with a publishing company soon after arriving in New York from Boston. Lunch hours were spent in casting offices, but after several months of "no casting today" replies, Miss Cass returned to Boston.

Success came with her role in "Auntie Mame," and since then, Peggy Cass has been featured in virtually all the major television dramatic shows and currently has a TV show of her own in New York.

Morton DaCosta directed "Auntie Mame" for Warner Bros. and the Technirama-Technicolor production also features Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark.

THE STORY

(Not for Publication)

Following the death of his ultra-conservative father, ten-year-old Patrick Dennis (JAN HANDZLIK), with his governess, Nora Muldoon (CONNIE GILCHRIST), is ushered into the New York apartment of his nearest relative, Auntie Mame (ROSALIND RUSSELL) by the Japanese houseboy Ito (YUKI SHIMODA). On his arrival, Patrick finds himself in the middle of a raucus party, including several eccentric guests like Vera Charles (CORAL BROWNE), an actress and Mame's best friend, and Acacius Page (HENRY BRANDON), owner of a progressive school. Several days later, Dwight Babcock (FRED CLARK), the official trustee for Patrick, appears at the apartment to insist on the boy's education. Babcock is pleased by Mame's apparent willingness to send her nephew to the conservative Bixby School, but when some months later he discovers Patrick romping at Acacius Page's Progressive School instead, he angrily informs Mame that the boy will go to St. Boniface Academy in Connecticut. When Mame is wiped out financially in the crash of 1929, she takes a pre-Christmas job as sales girl at Macy's. She becomes an ex-sales girl when the floor manager finds her being instructed in the fine art of making out sales slips by Beauregard Burnside (FORREST TUCKER), a fine-looking southern gentleman. The New Year, however, begins more happily with Mame and Patrick vacationing at Peckerwood, the magnificent Georgia plantation home of the Beauregards. After a hair-raising horseback ride in a fox hunt, everyone hails Mame as a superb horsewoman, and Beauregard proposes three cheers for the future Mrs. Burnside. The happy marriage ends some years later when Beauregard plunges from the Matterhorn, but a new project awaits a saddened and listless Mame upon her return from Europe. Patrick, now a college student, has hired a secretary, Agnes Gooch (PEGGY CASS), and a collaborator, Brian O'Bannion (ROBIN HUGHES), to work with his aunt on what should be her colorful autobiography. Mame's loyal friend, Lindsay Woolsey (PATRIC KNOWLES), has promised to publish the book, and it proves to be wonderful occupational therapy for Mame. Patrick arrives home from college with a very special girl, Gloria Upson (JOANNA BARNES), beautiful but vapid. They announce their plans for a September wedding at Gloria's home in Mountebank, Connecticut. Realizing this will not be a good match, Mame arranges a party for the Upsons. On the appointed evening, Patrick arrives just before the others and is pleasantly surprised to find a beautiful new secretary, Pegeen Ryan (PIPPA SCOTT). The party is a raging success for everyone except the Upsons, and they finally leave, never to be seen again. Patrick seems relieved they are going out of his life. The years pass and Patrick and his wife, Pegeen, and their 10-year-old son, Michael, are at the apartment. Auntie Mame promises, "I'm going to open doors for you Michael. Doors you never dreamed existed." History is about to repeat itself!
